

I'LL BE YOUR MIRROR

A Group Show Curated by Arranging Things

Julia Jutterström

Heartbreaker, 2023

Mirror glass, steel, acrylic paint. Approx 980x920 mm

Julia Jutterström is an interdisciplinary artist from Stockholm. Her practice is at the crossroads between art and design, rooted in degrees in interior architecture and furniture design. Her aesthetic is expressive, raw, and dark, with a fearlessness to use the darkness as her muse. By welding metal into various objects, she creates pieces that exemplify her experimental approach to the material.

“Do you feel your heart beating? Do you feel the thorns? Who are they hurting? An object that symbolizes an armed heart through materials, methods and shape.”

Erik Olovsson

Pond Mirror, 2023

Silvered glass. Approx 320x430 mm

Erik Olovsson is a Stockholm based artist. Since 2013 he has worked within various fields of art, craft and design, aiming to push the boundaries for materials and techniques. Olovsson has a focus on improvisation and joining materials in new ways. The pieces are often seen as both sculptural and functional objects, coming from an intuitive and experimental starting point.

Olovsson has works represented at Paris based Galerie Kreo and in various private collections. His works have been showed in numerous international venues, like Design Miami, PAD and TEFAF.

“The ‘Pond’ mirror is crafted by pouring molten glass onto a heated graphite block and then flattened out with wooden tools. Each piece is then polished by hand to a smooth finish before being silvered to create a reflective surface.”

Sofia Eriksson

Abstractions of You, 2023

Press formed, chased and polished copper, nickel plated and mounted on lacquered mdf. Approx 620x620x40 mm

Sofia Eriksson works close to the material in time-consuming and repetitive processes, where she combines silversmithing techniques with sculptural techniques and materials. She creates ornamental sculptures made up of abstract bodies. Eriksson is interested in bodily sensations and human desires, through her works she speculates on alternative realities; she ponders what a body can be. Material, the process of making and concept exist in symbiosis where they lead each other forward.

Sofia Eriksson is educated at Konstfack and lives and works in Stockholm.

“In my work ‘Abstractions of You’, the mirror-like surface is a tool for transformation, a borderland where object and viewer merge. It is a play with the corporeal and the ornamental, where the line between the real and surreal is blurred.”

Henrik Ødegaard

Do(o)R e Mi(rror), 2023

Oak, mirror glass. Approx 930x750x100 mm

Henrik Ødegaard (b. 1982, Norway) is a Designer, Artist & Curator based in Oslo. Along with his own design practise he is running Pyton, a Nomadic artist driven exhibition space showing contemporary and historical design and art.

Education:

The Oslo School of Architecture and Design (Architecture)

2008- 2014

Oslo National Academy of the Arts (Graphic Design) 2003-2006

“A wooden mirror with doors. A play with sections and the changing of the shape.”

Lisa Reiser

Plasma, 2023

Steel surface-treated with linseed oil and a gas flame, grey tinted mirror glass. Approx 960x1090 mm

Lisa Reiser works as a product designer/artist with her base in Sundsvall. She is inspired by workshops, materials and day-dreams. Most often she makes works in glass or metal.

“This mirror was inspired by a new love for hand plasma cutters. It makes the impossible possible. If you only have access to hand machines/tools, everything becomes very straight in the world of steel. A strict frame on the outside where the plasma allows to do whatever you want inside. So I wanted to turn fast and a lot, just like motocross.”

Niklas Runesson

ULMI, 2023

Elm and mirror glass. Approx 800x1180 mm

Niklas Runesson (b. 1985) is a self-taught craftsman and cabinet maker raised in Småland. With a legacy of three generations of woodworkers/engineers who were active from 1945-2000 in the manufacture of turned toy parts, Runesson takes the legacy into the present.

Much of Runesson's inspiration comes from nature, but also fragments of the unknown and imagination. A mantra that often comes back when he wants to explain the feeling is “friendly creature”, a recurring theme.

“With ‘Ulmi’ I wanted to create the feeling of a large mysterious insect-like mouth, a friendly creature that looks back at us.”

Martin Thübeck

Eyck, 2023

Box in beech wood with convex plastic mirror. Approx 610x610x70 mm

Martin Thübeck is a Swedish designer who works and lives in Stockholm. He is trained as a Interior Architect and Furniture Designer, with a master's degree from Konstfack (University College of Arts, Crafts and Design) graduating in 2020.

"With the 'Eyck' mirror I explore the relationships between geometrical shapes through the scope of 15th century painter Jan Van Eyck. The convex mirror in the wooden box reflects the inside of the box creating a frame between it self and the outside of the box. Playing with the notion of inside and out side."

Silje Lindrup

Cut in Water, 2022

Glass and mirror glass. Approx 300x500 mm

With glass as primary material, artist and glassblower Silje Lindrup creates objects in the borderland between arts and crafts. Interested in living processes where body, technique and material together decide the result, she strives to push boundaries within traditional glass making. Energy, movement and chance are keywords in Lindrup's practice and are often present in the niche objects.

"Cut in water is a mirror made out of dripping hot glass combined with an imitating mirror shape. My thoughts about making this mirror was to create a frame that would make the viewer appear in a more magical context."

Jonatan Nilsson

Mirror of the rising sun, 2023

Laser cut acrylic, 3D printed PLA, metal hardware. Approx 350x455 mm

Jonatan Nilsson is a Swedish designer that works and lives in Stockholm. In 2017 he graduated from Beckmans College of Design, and has since then run his own design studio. Manufacturing processes, with focus on innovation and with an experimental approach, is a central part of Nilsson's design practice. An ambition of his is to make complex and expressive objects that in some way questions the prevailing standards of how things are supposed to look or function. In 2019 Nilsson was awarded Young designer of the year by Elle Decoration Sweden. He is represented by Culture Object gallery in New York.

"I've been working with laser cut acrylic for quite some time now. A bit more recently I started making swords. Samurai swords are my favourite to make, and a short sword like the one that has pierced the surface of the mirror is called Tantō in Japanese. I've kind of stolen the aesthetics of the mirror from a book stand that I found at a store called China Li here in Stockholm. Since I paid for it I think it's fine though. Not really worried about the potential aspects of cultural appropriation in my work either. "

Leo Eklund

Treasure Island, 2023

Pine wood, pigment, linseed oil. Approx 350x1400 mm

Leo Eklund is a Stockholm based artist, with a particular interest in geometry and color. Turned pieces of wood are assembled into sculptures, with attention to the shapes created in-between. He's got a BA in Furniture design from Konstfack University.

"Two belt buckles and a vertical zig-zag pattern. This mirror came about when I was spending my days playing with the lathe, and the nights manically searching Ebay for vintage western wear."

Gustav Winsth

Heavy Metal, 2023

Mirror polished stainless steel. Approx 580x2150x300 mm

Gustav Winsth is a Swedish designer exploring a modern aesthetic, often through the lens of radical design. His work bears a glimpse of his background in engineering with an obvious interest in industrial processes and manufacturing combined with references to fashion and street culture. He is leaning towards a playful yet unconventional aesthetic in implementing these factors in furniture design.

"I once read that people passing storefronts with reflective windows statistically decrease their speed by 20% to catch a glimpse of themselves. So why put effort into creating a visually stunning frame when the mirrored image has the attracting force? Instead, I looked to materials that allowed me to shape the reflection itself.

The smooth curvature of the mirror-finish steel not only adds visual appeal but also serves as a functional shelf and conceals any unsightly wall fixtures behind it, allowing for a streamlined aesthetic. The result is a sleek and sophisticated piece of heavy metal that primarily showcases your reflection."

(Please note: due to its size, this mirror is on view at Arranging Things)

OWL

Depends On How I Feel, 2023

Mirror polished stainless steel. Approx 1420x370x370 mm

OWL is a Barcelona-based design studio led by Alfredo Lopez, which designs and manufactures unique furniture and objects, mainly but not exclusively in wood. As a practice, OWL understands its furniture collections as series and therefore objects in constant evolution, which allows them to adapt to different people, projects and spaces.

'Depends On How I Feel' is sculptural piece intended to reflect/distort the person looking at it in different ways, considering the angle and distance you are in. Materials used are plywood, Glass, Lacquered MDF and some steel for structural support.

(Please note: Sculpture, ask for location)
